Cured-in-Place-Pipe (CIPP) Lining Current Contractor List

The City of Santa Barbara’s Sewer Lateral Inspection Program Team is encouraging residents to consider using a trenchless method of rehabilitation called cured-in-place pipe (CIPP) lining whenever feasible. This method can be a competitive alternative to “trenchless” pipe bursting or conventional trenching methods to replace sewer laterals. The felt-resin liner is typically installed through a cleanout or a small access pit on your property and uses your existing clay or cast iron pipe already in the ground as a host pipe to rehabilitate, or renew, your sewer lateral. Because the liner does not have any joints, it is a great method to extend the useful life of your existing sewer lateral by improving the structural integrity of your sewer lateral and eliminate problematic maintenance and environmental issues commonly found on sewer laterals, such as roots, infiltration and exfiltration.

Rehabilitate

The City does not specifically endorse any one private plumbing company. Instead, the companies listed below are those who are known to the City of Santa Barbara who have used the CIPP lining method through the use of a sub-contractor or as a self-performing contractor to successfully rehabilitate sewer laterals within the City of Santa Barbara.
